Independent Living Residency Agreement
Willowbrook at Hanover
Resident: Sample Resident A
Apartment: IL-214
Date: March 1, 2026

1. Community. The community is Willowbrook at Hanover, a congregate care community in Hanover, Virginia. Independent living, assisted living, and memory care are offered in one building on one parcel and are operated as one community.

2. Purpose. The stated purpose of the community is to monitor and improve the health and well-being of residents. The residency is not marketed as ordinary age-restricted multifamily housing.

3. Health screening. Before move-in, and at least annually after move-in, the community performs a health screening. The purpose of the screening is to assess the resident’s health status and to arrange or procure appropriate services. The screening is not used to keep out residents who may later need care. If the resident needs assistance with activities of daily living, the resident may transfer to an assisted-living unit in this building, subject to availability and licensure.

4. Wellness staff. A full-time registered nurse is the wellness director. The wellness director’s duties include resident health, health-education programs, coordinating outside medical providers, monitoring whether the apartment remains suitable, and speaking with families about medical needs. Licensed practical nurses are on the wellness staff. Twenty-four-hour staff conduct a daily wellness check and eat with and observe residents for changes in condition.

5. Arranged care. When a resident needs home health, hospice, therapy, or personal care, management actively arranges that care. The community has a written agreement with Rappahannock Home Health, LLC. The community supervises health-related in-apartment equipment, including oxygen concentrators and other clinical equipment used in the unit.

6. File of life. The community keeps a file-of-life packet for each resident, including any DNR or advance directive the resident provides, and posts the current packet for emergency responders.

7. Emergency call. Every apartment has an emergency-call system. Each resident is issued a personal emergency pendant. Community staff, not an outside alarm vendor acting alone, receive the call and respond.

8. Meals and program. The monthly fee includes congregate meals planned for the dietary needs of older adults and served in the community dining room as part of the health program. Activities include fall-prevention classes, chronic-condition education, and cognitive-wellness sessions. Housekeeping, linen, and scheduled transportation are included. The operator states that these services are part of the health-and-wellness program, not a convenience package for a social club.

9. Building. Handrails are installed in corridors. Exterior doors lock at night for resident security. A fitness room is used for programming supervised for older adults. Sharps containers are maintained in the wellness clinic.

10. What this agreement does not say. This agreement does not state that the community provides no health-care services. It does not state that the resident is solely responsible for the resident’s health-care needs. Staff are not limited to unlicensed hospitality duties.

11. Charges. There is no entrance fee and no continuing-care contract within the meaning of section 7872(g)(4). This is a monthly residency agreement.
